

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
Preface	9
I. Renaissance—the Word and the Underlying Concept .	11
II. Some Aspects of the Origin of Italian Humanism . .	27
III. The Sorbonne Library and the Italian Renaissance .	41
IV. The Post-Mortem Adventures of Livy	55
V. Hieremias de Montagnone and His Citations from Catullus	81
VI. Petrarch's Favorite Books	117
VII. The Composition of Petrarch's « De Vita Solitaria » and the History of the Vatican Manuscript	139
VIII. Petrarch's Acquaintance with Catullus, Tibullus, Pro- pertius	181
IX. Observations on Novati's Edition of Salutati's Letters .	201
X. Filippo Villani's Copy of His History of Florence .	241
XI. A Letter of Giovanni da San Miniato to Angelo Cor- binelli	249
XII. The Dedication Copy of Giovanni Dominici's « Lucu- la Noctis »	257
XIII. Chrysoloras' Two Letters to Coluccio Salutati . . .	279
XIV. Additions to Salutati's Letters from the Turin Manu- script and Correspondence with Bernardo Moglio	285
XV. Poggio's Manuscripts of Livy and Other Authors . . .	307
XVI. Leonardo Bruni and Humanistic Historiography . . .	321
XVII. Manuscripts of Duke Humphrey of Gloucester . . .	345
XVIII. Manuscripts of Nicholas of Cues	357
XIX. The Dedication Copy of Pomponio Leto's Edition of Sallust and the « Vita » of Sallust	365
XX. Codices Maffeiiani	373